EQUESTRIAN ARTIFACTS OF THE ENGLISH TOBACCO COLONIES: IDENTIFICATION, MANUFACTURING, TRADE, AND INTERPRETATION

Speaker: Sara Rivers Cofield, Curator of Federal Collections, Maryland Archaeological Conservation Lab

Many of the metal artifacts recovered on colonial archaeological sites in Maryland represent hardware from saddles and bridles. These often unrecognized pieces of history offer insight into the relationship between colonists and their horses. Sara will share her research on how to recognize and understand the meaning of these artifacts, and better yet, she will bring the artifacts themselves for attendees to see in person.
